Pebble Beach will get a new Fire Station

By Elizabeth Cowley

The ground was officially broken at the new Carmel Hill Fire Station in Pebble Beach on Friday, May 19. Third district Supervisor Tom Perkins, Pebble Beach Company President Tom Oliver, Craig Anthony of the California Department of Forestry (CDF), Bill Gianelli of the Pebble Beach Community Services District (PBCSD) and Hiroshi Watanabe of the Lone Cypress Company, among others, all took shovels in hand to mark the formal commencement of construction.

The Carmel Hill Fire Station will be located at the old Woodyard site just inside the Highway 1 gate in Pebble Beach. Currently, the CDF leases the Highway 68 fire station from the Community Hospital of Monterey Peninsula (CHOMP) however, the lease expires in October of 1995 and CHOMP intends to construct a new medical facility there necessitating the relocation of the fire station.

The project's planning, approval and financing were completed in record time due to the cooperation between the public and private organizations involved. The Pebble Beach Company donated the 2 acre parcel and further agreed to finance the project's construction to avoid any delays. CDF, PBCSD and the Cypress Fire District will later buy back the fire station improvements at a fixed cost of $2 million; any project overruns will be covered by the Pebble Beach Company. Additionally, CHOMP funded most of the planning, architectural, and engineering services.

The Carmel Hill Fire Station project will also include a 72 space park and ride lot to facilitate the Pebble Beach Company's effort to encourage carpooling of its 1,400 employees.

Mark Stilwell, Pebble Beach Company Vice President of Real Estate, thanked Supervisors Sam Karas and Tom Perkins for their cooperation and assistance in expediting the

Carmel Valley Chamber meeting report

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce (CVCC) Board of Directors held its monthly meeting on Thursday, May 17 at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station.

Director Judi Pospishil suggested that the CVCC hold a supplementary Board meeting to clearly identify Chamber goals and direction. Ms. Pospishil also suggested improving the CVCC newsletter by adding a monthly member profile.

On June 14 the CVCC will hold a mixer at the Mid Valley Shopping Center from 5:30-7:30 p.m.. The mixer will highlight Mid Valley Shopping Center merchants and include a raffle, prizes and refreshments. The CVCC and the Carmel Business Association are planning to hold a joint mixer at the Barnyard in July.

Light Systems Company has developed a program entitled "Virtual Destination" which allows internet users to see pictures of and read about the vacation destinations of their choice. Light Systems gives a free "page" of space to Chambers of Commerce and business owners can buy advertising "pages" under their geographical heading. Light Systems Company will hold a demonstration of Virtual Destination for the CVCC Board and its members on May 23 at the Crossroads Community Room from 9:00-11:00 am.

The CVCC has confirmed its space at the Sunset Travel Fair at the San Jose Conference Center which will be held June 9 through June 11. Last year's Travel Fair, sponsored by Sunset magazine, drew over 22,000 people. The CVCC will staff the both and provide the visitors with information about Carmel Valley and CVCC member businesses.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

Virginia Parke

The sun is shining. We are standing with Brenda Hennessy in her back yard on Los Helechos. The only noticeable evidence that the whole area was under approximately four feet of water, mud and pieces of wood, butane tanks, construction and yard equipment a few months ago is the mud marks on the buildings and the lack of vegetation.

Dorothy McEwen and Stew Clough are describing to Todd Lueders, Executive Director of the Community Foundation for Monterey County, the extensive ground level recovery work survivors are having to do to reclaim their homes. The reason for this afternoon's excursion is to show Todd how the $10,000 grant received by the Carmel Valley Village Flood Relief (CVVRF) from the Community Foundation sponsored Flood Relief '95' telethon is being used.

This grant brings the total funds raised from the original Sun sponsored "Up The Creek" Benefit to over $50,000. All the funds raised have gone directly to benefit survivors. The Community Foundation staff members also contributed their time and talent on a volunteer basis to produce the telethon.

The work on the homes on Los Helechos starts down at the foundation. People have to crawl under houses and dig out the mud around the foundation wood beams one bucket at a time. This is the only way to keep the supports from rotting and undermining the house.

That is only the beginning. The electrical systems, insulation and walls in many of the homes have to be replaced. Mud must be dug out of heating ducts and vents. Mountains of debris have to be removed from around the houses by tractors. Walls have to be pulled apart then it all has to be hauled away by dump trucks.

Brenda relates her feelings of disbelief at the time of the flood. Standing on the graded ground that now surrounds her home, she still finds it hard to believe the amount of effort and work it is taking to put her home back together.

The grant from the Community Foundation and the contributions made to the CVVRF, P.O.Box 149, Carmel Valley, 93924 will continue to assist survivors in the arduous task of reclaiming their homes.

Bussinger joins Santa Lucia Preserve staff

Bob Bussinger, the man synonymous with the Ventana Inn, Big Sur, for the past two decades, is leaving his treasured post as Ventana's General Manager to become director of community planning at the Santa Lucia Preserve, south of Carmel Valley.

According to Tom Gray, General Manager of the Santa Lucia Preserve, Bussinger will play a vital role in creating the community that will financially support and protect the 20,000 acres that are now Rancho San Carlos.

The Santa Lucia Preserve will be established to set aside, in perpetuity, 18,000 acres, 90% of the current Rancho San Carlos, as a wildlife refuge. This open space will be managed by the Santa Lucia Conservancy, formed with the guidance and cooperation of the Trust for Public land.

Three hundred home sites have been selected over the remaining 2,000 acres of community settled land to have minimal impact on natural resources and wildlife habitat. Over the next 20 years, the settled lands are also planned to include 150 rooms of lodging (including the current hacienda), employee quarters, equestrian facilities and a golfing trail.

As director of community planning, Bussinger sees his primary responsibility as establishing the framework of a unique community committed to sustain the Preserve.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

My goal for the month of June: just once, please, I'd like to lay in bed at night with the window open, listen to the river running in the distance and smell the sweet summer air of a fogless morning the next day.

Last Thursday the gray stuff actually burned away by noon, leaving us with a (hey, what's that bright thing up there...) blue sky above and a teasing reminder of what May used to be like around here. I mean, heck, when I was a kid...

Okay gang, time to get real around here; Memorial Day has come and gone and that means time to put away the firewood and break out the BBQ. Time to start thinking about Sunday afternoons in the park and lazy days at the Community Pool.

The pool goes into full-time operation starting the 2nd weekend in June and, weather permitting, will stay open well into the fall. Still plenty of time to get those family and individual swim passes, good for the entire Endless Summer. And...still a few spaces available for kid's swim lessons, but hurry, these spaces will be gone quickly as soon as the season starts.

Can't quite fit all those friends and neighbors of yours into the backyard? Planning a big outdoor event soon? Consider reserving one of the excellent BBQ spaces at the Community Park. Planning a special event? The park Gazebo may be just the right setting for your occasion. But hurry...all facilities available on a first come, first served basis. Check your calendar then call the CVCYC office today.

Hey, looking ahead to the coming summer...Your Community Center is very pleased to be bringing you the very big, very cool, very exciting 3rd annual CVCYC Community Flea Market and Craft Sale on Saturday, July 29th from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the upper parking lot of Carmel Middle School. This sale gets bigger and better each year. Now is your chance to go digging deep into those over-stuffed closets and pull out all that great junk you've been meaning to get rid of.

It's really fun and easy folks. Call the Community Center at 659-3983 and say "I've got too much junk" and we'll send you a Flea Market space application. Your small fee entitles you to a 12x12 space from which to sell all your collectible treasures. The Community Center takes care of all the advertising and you get to drive home with full pockets and an empty car. All antique and local craftpersons and artists are welcome. Call today to reserve your space.

Your Community Center is organizing the Fiesta Weekend 10K run this summer. Never too early to get signed up. All early entrants will receive a free 1/10 mile deduction from the course of the race. Community volunteers are also needed to help plan and organize this year's race, guaranteed to be the best ever. Watch this space for more details as the Fiesta approaches.

The volunteer board at the Community Center wishes to thank the many hundreds of Valley folks who came out to enjoy an evening of outstanding western music, dance and fun at the First Annual C.V. Round-Up. Many thanks to Strictly Country and Eight Second Ride for providing the great dance music. Special kudos to community volunteer Elyse for chairing this wonderful event and to CVCYC Exec Director and Operation Director Tim Doreck and Debbi Effron for an unbelievable effort. Further special thanks to Peter Meckel at Hidden Valley for providing the space to make it all happen. For the few folks out there who missed it, well, we'll do it again next year.

Watch this space for upcoming details of a special production of Alice in Wonderland. The play will be presented the first week in July at Hidden Valley and is brought to you by the Community Center's Performing Arts Workshop Players. Plan now to attend and show your support for this very special and talented group of local kids as they present the first in a series of stage productions by Valley youth.

The popular CVCYC sponsored dog training class has been moved from Sundays to Thursday evenings to accommodate a larger class. Brought to you through the good people at PuppyWise (a contradiction), this class covers all the basics in puppy and dog training: from single commands to staying off the couch at night. The class will now meet Thursday evenings from 6 to 8:30 at the Community Hall on Ford Road. Call the office for complete details.

As a special community service, the folks at the volunteer firehouse are now offering free satellite hook-up for all your evening movie needs. Thanks to the new and real (attractive?) dish atop the firehouse, residents on Lupin Ln. and Ford Road can also bend their own rabbit ears towards Via Contenta and pick up CNN, MTV and the Playboy channel, all at the same time. Call the FCC for complete details.

VALLEY VOICE

D Day (June 6, 1944)--a day remembered from personal experience by some and studied by all others; a day in which the largest amphibious force ever assembled invaded the beaches at Normandy to bring World War II to a conclusion.

D Day (June 6, 1995)--a day in which live in Carmel Valley as we know it could change forever. Supervisor Karas has assembled his forces in support of a traffic signal for Carmel Middle School. They include the Carmel Unified School district (requesting a light in front of Carmel Middle School), Del Mesa Carmel, Hacienda Carmel, Carmel Views and Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club Homeowners (requesting a light at Rio Vista Drive).

The opposition is led by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA), in existence since 1949 and active in its continuing effort to represent Carmel Valley before the Board of Supervisors. The report of the Carmel Valley Road Improvement Committee also opposed a traffic signal for the school and offered a myriad of alternatives which ave yet to be considered by the Board of Supervisors.

The battle begins at 10:10 a.m. at the Supervisor's chambers located at 240 Church Street in Salinas. Supervisor Karas will propose his "compromise" to temporarily install a traffic signal in front of Carmel Middle School. The light will be removed "when the Rio Road extension is constructed." The cost is estimated at $150,000 for the light and $20,000 for a path on the north side of Carmel Valley Road from Rio Vista Drive east to the school. Public Works, if asked, will probably still support the newly configured intersection at Rio Vista Drive with a frontage road into the school. The cost is budgeted for $270,000 with the signal costing $170,000 and the frontage road a maximum of $100,000.

If one were taking bets, the Karas forces will prevail. As soon as the signal is approved, Karas will move forward with another traffic signal proposal, this time at Rancho San Carlos Road. Future signals can be expected at Valley Greens Drive, Dorris Drive and Laureles Grade.

And so, June 6, 1995, truly will be an historic day for residents of Carmel Valley. If you want a lot of traffic signals on Carmel Valley Road, your day is coming. If that's not what you want, one has to ask what you are doing about it?

Three votes will be required to approve the signal. Supervisor Karas' position is well known. That leaves Supervisor Judy Pennycook (647-7722), Simon Salinas (755-5011), Edith Johnsen (647-7744) and Tom Perkins (647-7963).

When one looks at traffic problems on Carmel Valley Road, congestion caused by parents privately chauffeuring their children to Carmel Middle School isn't at the top of the list. The County has very limited resources for road improvements. Every signal installed is one less turn pocket or pathway or contribution toward the Rio Road extension which could benefit thousands of Valley residents. What do you want?

The remarkable "White House and Congress Show", with 17 months to run before the 1996 election, is well on the way to beating Connie Chung's "turning people off" record.

As if on cue, nobody seems willing to really bite the bullet long enough to mention the outlandish money giveaways-(lavish foreign aid, bloated salaries and pension, "give the store away" trade policies, utterly useless space and defense overkill projects, etc.).

And, in a pretense of doing something about one of our country's main problems, (our monstrous and still-growing $5 trillion debt), our pitiful major political parties are arguing about whether we should set a timetable of seven years or ten years to achieve a "balanced budget". Not many years ago, a famous budget director thought it could be done in five years. (Somehow, it reminded me, at the time, of the Soviet Union's long series of Five Year Plans of the late twenties and early thirties, when they were trying to get communism to work. As it turned out, their communism didn't work very well.) If we can't come up with higher quality management rather soon, we'll be the world's best developed Third World bankrupt nation.

Wrote to the great Robert Shapiro in care of the great Judge Ito. Asked him why he hadn't come forward with the obvious explanation of the murders that Mr. Simpson is being accused of. Everybody, including the jury, knows about aliens from outer space. A jury willing to listen for months (at $5 per day) to the stuff so far brought forward should be ready to believe that a band of outer space aliens, recently - escaped convicts from a little-known part of the universe, had landed in Los Angeles and had committed the murders during a botched robbery after which they framed Mr. Simpson to avoid possibility of extradition.

Who would've ever imagined that an outdoor education curriculum could work for one-hundred fifty plus seventh grade science students--Carmel Middle School did!

Once again the school has proven that innovation is a key to nurture, excite and provide educational experiences. The Science Department at CMS has been in the forefront of innovation, motivating and challenging their students...sixth grade explores the Pinnacles, eighth grade visits Lava Beds/Mt. Lassen in the fall and Death Valley in the spring. This year seventh grade will forge along.

May 9 began the initiation of the First Annual Outdoor/Environmental Education Program for all seventh graders. Held in Big Sur for 4 days and 3 nights. The mark of distinction for this program was the variety of lessons that were scheduled and the organization of scheduling.

Special recognition should be given to the coordinators: Susie Bradley (seventh grade science teacher), Clell Seelig (retired teacher from the middle school) and Susan Kendall (science teacher). It should also be noted that a number of teachers came down and taught their specialty; Scott Rainer (birdhouse construction), Pat Stadille (Entomology), Craig Hohenberger (bird banding). Additional thanks must be given to Craig and the staff of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary. Their contribution to the program was invaluable and I am certain they provided incentive for students and staff to further their interest of the world of natural science.

There were a number of guests from our community and neighboring communitiès (Santa Cruz...) that shared their talents as well (geology, poetry, history), and the ranger shows put on by the State Parks must be thanked too.

The whole program worked, and this I believe was in due part not only to the coordinators but especially because Karl Pallestrini, Principal of CMS, has the foresight and intuitiveness to trust and support his staff and the community, and most important, believes in the spirit of middle school students. He needs to be commended.

The Carmel River Property Owners Coalition was begun in April as a community organization to represent the interests of residential and commercial property owners along the Carmel River affected by the recent floods. The Coalition has carefully reviewed the preliminary report of the Carmel River Flood Task Force and is in support of its recommendations for the river.

The task force charter will conclude with

the presentation of their report to the Board of Supervisors on June 20th. There is a clear need for a community organization to work together to see that this body of work is implemented with all due haste.

The Coalition seeks to fill this need and to act as an interface between government agencies and the river community. By unifying our efforts behind our common goals, we will be much more effective in seeing that the various flood mitigation projects succeed.

We invite representatives from every residential and commercial property along the river to join the Coalition at our next meeting which will be held at 3 p.m. on Thursday, June 1 at Rancho Canada.

The first order of business will be to identify all urgent short-term flood mitigation projects and to outline and initiate a strategy to accomplish these tasks before the next winter rains. We will also discuss strategies to accomplish longer term flood mitigation projects.

For more information, call Don Boston at Rancho Canada 624-0111 or Bob Bogardus at Bogardus Software at 625-3299.

A TEACHERS PRAISE FOR LISA VICE

Dear Lisa,

As I write often more clearly in company than alone, I allowed the creation of a book review a la John Detro (a letter to the author) as today's class writing suggestion.

Your book, "Reckless Driver", recently published by Dutton, reads easily. Like a jig-saw puzzle, pieces of the whole come together, provide a large, clear image at the finale, hinted at during the gradual placement of vignette next to vignette. That you title each piece adds to its fullness.

The dark sky, the heat of fire, ice cream days next to harsh nights...through these pictures we see inside a young girl's soul, feel the pulse of her heart, whether through joy or fear and all that in between. My youth, not familiar with Indiana, nor of a lifestyle connected to Lana's, but I knew childhood emotions and in that I find our kinship.

What I so appreciate about your writing...the clarity, the honesty of voice and the sensations that go beyond my head when I read your words. You tell a tale as though you were a photographer, capturing with your lens that which is, yet adjusting the light, the angle, the direction, to best tell the story.

Even the parents, who do only as they know how, avoid the reader's extreme judgement. "Reckless Driver" is no fairy tale, hero and villain clearly marked, with the ultimate triumph of good over evil. Your books build into a foreshadowed crescendo, then continues on its way. The reader wants to know more, yet being satisfied with what is already told. I imagine that to be a writer's dream.

So, Lisa, I congratulate you for putting forth that which only you can present, that which all who recall early can identify. Remember, I want to know more. Maybe the time will come when I can again read about Lana.

REAL ESTATE Rand Smith

UNDERSTANDING THE HUNTER'S MENTALITY

My brother-in-law is a duck lover. He has posters of ducks, statues of ducks, towels with ducks, undershorts with ducks. His coffee mugs are shaped like ducks. His phone is a duck decoy that quacks instead of rings. When we go somewhere he'll point out the ducks. He gets excited. Every chance he gets, he goes duck hunting and kills the ducks.

Until very recently I could never figure this out. What sort of warped mentality could spend its whole life fascinated with the very thing it wants to eliminate? I've always liked my brother-in-law, but I could never shake this "demented" thing . . .

Until yesterday.

To understand what happened to me yesterday, I must digress for a moment. You see, yesterday was no out of the ordinary day.

I woke up at my normal hour, dressed and came to work. My desk, as usual, was covered with stacks of phone messages and scribbled papers. There are 2 or 3 files stacked (should I say clumped?) in a pile that looked like a wild raccoon had ravaged them overnight. (My assistant always does her best to keep the files off my desk.)

There were three appointments scheduled in my daytimer - one termite inspector that I had to meet, one person who had just relocated and was thinking about buying a home before the year 2000, and one listing appointment with someone who had seen one of my signs and wanted to "interview" me. This was going to be another ordinary day and, while I can't say I was depressed, I can say that there was nothing here that was really turning me on.

Yesterday was also the day that I had to call all the sellers whose houses I have listed for sale and give them an update, which is not uncommon in this market.

So, as I waited outside the vacant house that I had just sold, while the termite inspector did his job, it began brewing. I shouldn't be here, I thought. I should be selling homes, not processing the sale.

Later, as I was filling my gas tank after I had finishing showing the Greater Monterey area to the relocation buyer, a steady rhythm began inside me. I'm not a tour guide, I thought. I should be negotiating transactions not pointing out historical markers and favorite ice cream parlors in the city limits.

It started to take over when I asked the couple who interviewed me where they were planning on moving. They said they weren't sure if they were going to move or just refinance, so what they wanted was my opinion on the value of their home and improvements. What they didn't say was that they wanted an appraisal for free. As I left their home, I began to notice the revelation taking place inside me.

I asked myself, what is it that I want to do? I want the glory of meeting people I've never met, finding out what they need and making it happen. Finding them a home they're crazy about. Meeting someone who wants to move, explaining what I do, taking the listing, and selling the house.

There's a challenge of converting people by winning their confidence that is exciting. The distrustful for sale by owner; the disillusioned seller whose listing expired; the wary senior citizen who has lived at the same address for 25 years or more; the demanding professional who can now afford much more and expects perfect service; the first-time buyer who trusts everything I say; they're all part of the sport. The responsibility is enormous, and exhilarating.

And so, my office wall is filled with plaques giving testimony to the success of my past clients, whose files fill my cabinet drawers. My computer is filled with prospective buyers and sellers, all of whom receive promotional flyers that fill my office shelves. I have 12 phone lines that all connect to voice mail that leaves my real estate message. The trunk of my car is loaded with brochure boxes, lock boxes and sign riders; things I put on houses that I list for sale and take down once they're sold. As I go anywhere, I point out houses to whomever I'm with.

Yesterday, when I was midway through my calls to my existing clients, it finally happened. I called a seller who I had first met two years ago. I stayed in contact with him because he knew he was going to sell, and I knew I wanted the listing. When he was ready, I was there. Now his house has been on the market for 4.5 months, and in all honesty, we're both getting tired of talking to each other. All I could think about was how happy I'd be if I could get it sold and get him gone!

When I made the connection between myself and my brother-in-law, I couldn't wait to tell him. But he wasn't home yesterday, my sister told me. He had gone duck hunting.

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

Before long, investors will realize once again they can make more money investing in hard assets--like precious metals, oil and real estate, than they can make by staying in soft assets--like stocks and bonds.

Traders are shifting out of weakening U.S. dollars and into hard foreign currencies. Discarded dollars are returning home from overseas. This adds liquidity to our financial system, but not value. Like a sponge soaking up water, soft assets are absorbing the new liquidity. We mark inflation at a relatively low 3%, we score record days in a puzzling bull market, and we rejoice.

We tend to link demand for soft assets with low inflation, and demand for hard assets with inflationary environments. The Fed has done everything in its power to maintain inflation in the 3% range with great success. Touchdown, soft assets.

In contrast, our Congress prefers prolonged indebtedness to a balanced national checkbook. Dismayed by declining values of the dollars they will receive in debt repayment, foreign governments can--and probably will--bring us to task for the amount of money we owe their financial institutions. We can expect to pay more for whatever hard assets we require overseas, the cost will be passed along to U.S. consumers and we will find ourselves in an inflationary environment. Game, hard assets.

Real Estate Thoughts
By William Smith

If you are thinking of purchasing real estate for development within Carmel Valley or within California American's service area acquired from the Carmel River, it would be wise to seek legal advice regarding the future availability of water. The State Water Resources Control Board could make a decision finding the Carmel River to be in an overdraft situation, having more water taken out of it than the basin can sustain, in spite of the recent floods. If the Board also finds the river to flow underground in a defined channel within the Carmel Valley River Basin, it may curtail almost all new development within the area.

Roy C. Gunter III, from the Monterey law offices of Murphy, Thompson & Gunter, said that the Board has jurisdiction to allocate the use of river water to those existing legally entitled owners only. These owners would include those whose land include or touch the Carmel River and those above the underground river flow, if it is found to be one.

The California American Water Company also claims many of the water rights as successor to rights granted by Pacific Improvement Company when developing the valley.

Notwithstanding the past 17 years of legal proceedings, Gunter explained that the building of a dam on the Carmel River may not happen within the foreseeable future. Environmental groups such as the Sierra Club have opposed the dam, and the Annual children's art exhibit continues in Carmel Valley

By Virginia Parke

"I love to see art through the eyes of a child," states photographic artist William (Will) Giles. "I guess that is the major reason that for the last seven years I have held the Annual Children's Art Show at my Carmel Valley Village Gallery in Del Fino Plaza."

"It is fun to watch children show their grandmother their art. It is as if they are saying "Look grandma, I count." I also hear them evaluating their efforts and explaining to each other how they achieved the picture."

Will moved to the Village and opened the gallery eight years ago. "At that time I made a commitment to encourage the development of the arts. I feel it is important for children to receive recognition for their creative as well as academic abilities. Art to me is "intrinsic development as athletics are extrinsic development. They are both important."

"I chose this location so I could have an area to use for a community gallery. Anyone in the community can contact me about using the space for a showing. My landowner, Carolyn Tugel has encouraged and supported exhibits in the covered outdoor area beside my studio. She has been wonderful to work with as has Vic Colton who does the gardening."

"My mother was a concert pianist. She and my father, who was a brain surgeon, encouraged and cultivated artistic interests. She would spend hours in museums with me. My inclination and love of art were valued. I hope I am able to pass this gift on to others in some small way."

"There are 524 pieces of art from the Tularcitos Elementary School students on display. The range of creative and visual presentations is impressive. This show would not have been possible without the efforts of Imogen Speicer who has worked hard to make it happen. Since this is an outdoor gallery, the laminating service of Susan Estes is indispensable."

When a class from Tularcitos comes to view the exhibit Will observes, "It is interesting to see how much influence a teacher has on how children see things." An example of that influence is expressed by Tularcitos 3rd grade teacher Marilyn Churilla.

"I feel this project is an important self-esteem learning tool for my students' development. It is a shared validation that what they do is important. It demonstrates to them that they count and provides an experience that allows them to believe it."

"The children, when we first walk in to the exhibit, are very impressed by the work of the other classes, particularly the kindergarten classes. It is a joy to hear them discuss the merits of a picture. They seem to have a natural ability to acquire a sense of what constitutes a piece of art from a drawing as a result of our art projects throughout the year."

"They save their work, then choose the piece they want to exhibit from the many projects we do. I am always careful to only give instruction as to the scope of the project and never give them a model to copy. This way they have a better chance to develop their individual perception and ability."

Marilyn relates that, "I ask each student what they like about what they have done. To me, positive comments are far more constructive than critical. It is amazing how much self-evaluation and direction they demonstrate."

Will would like to see the exhibit be used to reach out to the community. "First, I would like to put out a calendar. Sales could be used to support other projects at Tularcitos. What is needed is someone willing to donate the production costs. Second, I would like to see the exhibit go to another country and develop a pen pal program for the students. This would take someone with connections and commitment."

Author Henry Miller seemed to be expressing Will and Marilyn's feeling when he wrote in "To Paint Is To Love Again" that "The only artists for whom I would make way are-children. For me, the paintings of children belong side by side with the works of masters...they are always honest and sincere."

project's completion. In addition, Mr. Stilwell congratulated all of the public and private organizations involved for their collective effort.

The Carmel Hill Fire Station is expected to be operational by October 1995 to ensure that there is no gap in fire protection services.

Pebble Beach road work scheduled

Road detours and closures will begin May 30 and continue intermittently through June to accommodate installation of electrical and water line systems for the new California Department of Forestry (CDF) Fire Station just inside the Pebble Beach Company Highway 1 gate area.

On May 30, road work will occur at the corner of Sunridge Road and Scenic Drive to install of water line piping. One lane will be closed with controlled traffic flow.

From May 31 through June 2, Sunridge Road from Scenic Drive to 17 Mile Drive will be closed from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m., except to emergency vehicles. Seventeen Mile Drive will remain open.

From June 12 through June 14, 17 Mile Drive will be closed from Sunridge Road to Del Ciervo Road for road widening and installation of electrical, telephone and cable lines.

From June 15 through June 30, 17 Mile Drive will be open, but work will continue on other road areas. Roads will be repaved and striped in mid-September.

resulted in a tall, thick grass crop which is now in the process of drying. When the grasses are thoroughly dry, late May to early June, wildfires will start occurring. The tall grasses will make these wildfires burn with dramatic flame lengths, 80-100 feet.

Now is the time to protect your home. Clear flammable vegetation for a distance of 30 feet from the house's edge. Ornamental landscaping kept in a healthy green condition may remain inside the cleared area.
